Deadlock at Iraq Deadline

At last minute, leaders postpone completion of constitution

BAGHDAD, IRAQ | As their deadline neared, Iraqi leaders couldn't agree. Some couldn't even agree on what they disagreed on. Instead, they gave themselves another week to draft a new constitution, missing a key midnight Monday deadline and increasing questions about whether Iraq's factions are capable of compromise. It was a rebuff to U.S. officials pressing for a deal, even an incomplete one, to keep political momentum going and, eventually, blunt the deadly insurgency.

Twenty minutes before midnight, Iraq's parliament voted to give Shiite, Kurd and Sunni Arab delegates until Aug. 22 to resolve thorny power-sharing issues: how to share the oil money; whether the Kurds — and even the Shiites — can go their own way; and how Islam's role in the courts might affect women. "We should not be hasty regarding the issues and the constitution should not be born crippled," said Shiite Prime Minister Ibrahim al-Jaafari, after the parliament session. Shiites said the stumbling blocks were women's rights, inextricably tied to Islam's role; and the right of Kurds to eventually secede. But al-Jaafari said distribution of oil wealth and federalism — another, broader way of stating the Kurdish autonomy issue — were the key unresolved points. The confusion was one more sign of Iraq's sharp political divisions, and it left unclear whether the constitutional committee will now reopen talks on all issues or just focus on a few. BASSEM MROUE (AP)

PLAGUES | Toad Hazard Thousands of quarter-sized toads have invaded the farming community of Big Sandy, Mont., causing slippery streets and raising the entrepreneurial spirits of some. The toads started showing up in the southeast portion of town in the past couple of weeks. Residents say driving in town is a little sticky because the roads are filled with tiny, smashed toads. Some are collecting the toads to sell in pet stores. Others say they might try them out as fish bait. (AP) EyeOpeners | Page 2

A radio station stunt in Land O'Lakes, Fla., that had three listeners dress like escaped inmates went awry Friday when dozens of people called 911 and the resulting ruckus tied up traffic during morning rush hour, authorities said. The three, shackled and dressed in what appeared to be jail uniforms, were competing to try to get motorists to give them a ride, Pasco County sheriff's spokesman Kevin Doll said. The first one back to the studios of Tampa station WXTB-FM, 98 Rock, would win a trip to Los Angeles in conjunction with a new Fox show called "Prison Break." But after 30 or 40 calls from "terrified" motorists and residents, sheriff's deputies responded in force and took them into custody, Doll said. They were released after about an hour. (AP)

AUCTIONS

Mother Bids Best

First, St. Joseph, Mo., teens Chip Davis and Chris Pullen auctioned off a week of their time online for a fraction of what they had hoped to make. Then, the college-bound students learned the identity of their eBay "buyer": Davis' mother, Mary. "After finding out the winner was from St. Joseph, I was disappointed," Chip Davis said. "But now I'm even more disappointed to find out it was my mom." Mary Davis says she'll get her money's worth out of the deal. "It's a legal contract," she said, "so the longer they put it off, the longer the list of work will get." (AP)

SOUNDS

Squealing the Show

Yohann and Olivier Roussel's performance climaxed in a cacophony of oinks and grunts, unleashing an explosion of applause. But it was only after lengthy jury deliberations in Trie-sur-Baise, France, that their hopes were confirmed — the father-and-son team were the country's official Pig-Squealing Champions for 2005. To win, the pair had to impress judges in four required categories, reflecting milestones of porcine existence: noisy farm-yard birth, death under the knife, suckling and — inevitably — mating. (AP)

FOOD

King of Buns

Competitive eater Takeru Kobayashi of Japan has struck again, eating 100 roast pork buns — a palm-sized Chinese steamed treat — in 12 minutes to defeat five other contestants in Hong Kong on Saturday. First runner-up Johnny Wu, 34, managed to finish a mere 47 buns. Kobayashi, 27, has said the pork buns posed more of a challenge than the 83 vegetarian dumplings he downed in eight minutes. He pocketed $2,574 in cash, and still weighs just 144 pounds. (AP)

Posthumous Pardon for Only Woman Executed in Ga.

The only woman ever executed in Georgia's electric chair is being granted a posthumous pardon, 60 years after the black maid was put to death for killing a white man she claimed held her in slavery and threatened her life. The Georgia Board of Pardons and Paroles did not find Lena Baker innocent of the crime, but thought the decision to deny her clemency in 1945 "was a grievous error," a spokeswoman said. (AP)

Roberts Backed Prayer in Memo

Court nominee wrote barring school prayer 'seems indefensible'

WASHINGTON | Supreme Court nominee John Roberts showed sympathy for the idea of permitting prayer in public schools in 1985, according to a memo released on Monday, writing that a ruling to the contrary "seems indefensible" under the Constitution.

As a young lawyer working in the Reagan administration, Roberts wrote he would have no objection if the Justice Department wanted to express support for a constitutional amendment permitting prayer.

Referring to a Supreme Court ruling issued earlier that year that struck down an Alabama school prayer law, he added, "The conclusion ... that the Constitution prohibits such a moment of silent reflection — or even silent 'prayer'

— seems indefensible."

The Alabama law, ruled unconstitutional by a divided court, mandated a one-minute period of silence for meditation or prayer.

Roberts' two-paragraph memo, written to White House counsel Fred Fielding, was among nearly

Infants Snared by Federal 'No-Fly' Lists

WASHINGTON | Infants have been stopped from boarding planes at airports throughout the U.S. because their names are the same as or similar to those of possible terrorists on the government's "no-fly list."

Ingrid Sanden's 1-year-old daughter was stopped in Phoenix before boarding a flight home to Washington at Thanksgiving.

"I completely understand the war on terrorism, and I completely understand people wanting to be safe when they fly," Sanden said. "But focusing the target a little bit is probably a better use of resources."

The government's lists of people who are either barred from flying or require extra scrutiny before being allowed to board airplanes grew markedly since the Sept. 11 attacks. Critics including the American Civil Liberties Union say the government doesn't provide enough information about the people on the lists, so innocent passengers can be caught up in the security sweep if they have the same name as someone on the lists. Forecasts See Drop in Deficit

Budget shortfall less drastic than expected, but fiscal woes remain

WASHINGTON | Congressional forecasters said Monday the federal deficit this year, though still huge, won't be as bad as originally projected — a welcome turn for President Bush, who inherited healthy surpluses four years ago and saw them disappear in a sea of red ink.

At the same time, the fiscal outlook remains troubled for years to come, the nonpartisan Congressional Budget Office said.

The CBO predicted a $331 billion deficit for the budget year ending Sept. 30 and a $314 billion deficit for next year.

Last year's deficit was a record
$412 billion. In February, the White House had predicted this year's shortfall would set a higher record of $427 billion.

The short-term improvement was attributed to an $84 billion surge in estimated tax receipts, including a 42 percent increase in revenues from corporate profits.

But unlike a competing White House estimate issued last month,
CBO warned that the revenue improvements probably will not be sustained.

"Although the deficit for 2005 is lower than previously expected, the fiscal outlook for the coming decade remains about the same," the CBO report said. ANDREW TAYLOR (AP)

Study Examines Hand Preference In Chimpanzees

WASHINGTON | When it comes to fishing tasty termites out of their mounds, wild chimpanzees don't have the right stuff. Most, in fact, are southpaws.

A three-year study of 17 wild chimps in Tanzania found that 12 of them used their left hands when using sticks to probe for termites.
Four were right-handed and one was listed as ambiguously handed.

Because the hands are controlled by opposite sides of the brain, the finding could indicate this brain division had begun as long as 5 million years ago, prior to the split between humans and chimpanzees. (AP)

Hundreds Salute Publisher

Johnson, late chief of Ebony, Jet magazines, hailed as pioneer

CHICAGO | Pioneering black publisher John H. Johnson, who founded Ebony and Jet magazines, was hailed Monday as a man who left "an imprint on the conscience of a nation" during a packed funeral that drew Sen. Barack Obama, D-Ill., and former President Clinton.

Mourners filled the 1,500-seat Rockefeller Memorial Chapel at the University of Chicago for the 2 1/2-hour service. Johnson died Aug. 8 of heart failure at 87.

Obama said the positive images of blacks that Johnson placed in Ebony and Jet inspired blacks across the country to strive to become doctors, lawyers and politicians.

"Only a handful of men and women leave an imprint on the conscience of a nation and on the history that they helped shape," Obama said. "John Johnson was one of these men."

Born to a poor Arkansas family, Johnson started his publishing business with a $500 loan secured by his mother's furniture and built a publishing and cosmetics empire that made him one of the wealthiest and most influential black men in the United States. TARA BURGHART (AP)

COLOMBO, SRI LANKA Official's Death Raises Concerns Over Cease-Fire

Sri Lankans cremated their assassinated foreign minister Monday as the government urged the international community to clamp down on overseas supporters of Tamil rebels amid fears the killing could scuttle a three-year-old cease-fire. Soldiers and police fanned out across Colombo while thousands of Sri Lankans gathered to pay last respects to the slain Lakshman Kadirgamar at Independence Square. (AP)

GUATEMALA CITY Gang Members Riot in 4 Prisons, Killing at Least 30

Gang members armed with grenades, guns and knives attacked rivals in at least four Guatemalan prisons Monday, leaving at least 30 dead, officials said. Interior Minister Carlos Vielmann told the Associated Press that the riots apparently began with attacks by members of the Mara Salvatrucha gang against rivals of the MS-18 gang. He said the attacks may have been coordinated. (AP)

NEW DELHI Calcutta Moves to Ban Remaining Rickshaw Pullers

Calcutta plans to ban rickshaw-pulling, a century-old practice that has been prohibited or died off in most of the world, an official said Monday. Since the end of the 19th century, rickshaw pullers have been plying Calcutta's narrow lanes — a practice that Chief Minister Buddhadeb Bhattacharya on Monday called "inhuman." The pullers have resisted past attempts to ban their trade, demanding compensation or alternative jobs. (AP)

Emotions Run High for Gaza Pullout

Israeli troops deliver eviction notices in first stage of withdrawal

NEVE DEKALIM, GAZA STRIP | On the first day of Israel's Gaza pullout, thousands of Israeli troops handed out eviction notices to sobbing settlers and helped some pack, but also scuffled with crowds of protesters who barricaded themselves in their communities, burned tires and locked arms in a dramatic show of resistance.

Army commanders took pains to avoid clashes and refrained from forcing their way into settlements where opposition was heavy — a display of sensitivity before unleashing the military's muscle to be used against holdouts starting Wednesday.

Palestinians celebrated the beginning of the end of the 38-year occupation of Gaza, and militant factions competed for credit for expelling the Israelis through their violent five-year uprising.

ON DUTY: A Jewish settler pleads with an Israeli soldier not to carry out his orders as the withdrawal plan began in the Gush Katif bloc of the Gaza Strip on Monday.

Over the next three weeks, Israel plans to remove all 21 Jewish settlements from Gaza and four from the West Bank. The withdrawal — which is shaking up peace prospects in unpredictable ways — marks the first time Israel will dismantle set-

Eviction notices were distributed in about two thirds of the settlements to be evacuated, police said. By Monday night, hundreds of settlers had left Gaza or were preparing to do so, though exact numbers were not known. Complicating the army's mission, some 5,000 pullout opponents from outside Gaza have arrived in recent weeks, and they are vowing to resist. AMY TEIBEL (AP)

Koizumi Issues Apology For Japan's War Legacy

TOKYO | Prime Minister Junichiro Koizumi apologized Monday for Japan's wartime colonization and invasions on the 60th anniversary of its surrender in World War II, and he stayed away from a shrine criticized for glorifying the aggression that provoked two atomic bombings.

The war's legacy lingers in Asia, where many of Japan's neighbors accuse Tokyo of failing to atone fully for invading them and colonizing the Korean peninsula and Taiwan. The issue has stirred opposition to Japan's bid for a permanent seat on the U.N. Security Council.

China called on Tokyo to face up to its wartime aggression and urged Koizumi not to visit the Yasukuni war shrine, which honors Japan's war dead, including executed war criminals.

Koizumi's apology was his sec-

"Our country has caused great damages and pain to people in many countries, especially our Asian neighbors, through colonization and invasion," Koizumi said in a statement distributed to reporters. JOSEPH COLEMAN (AP)

Car Bombing Rocks Chechen Capital

GROZNY, RUSSIA | A powerful car bomb exploded outside a restaurant in Chechnya's capital Monday, killing two people — including a child — and wounding at least 11 others, a police spokesman said.

The blast was the latest violence in Grozny, which remains a shattered city some six years after Russian troops invaded the province seeking to end a separatist insurgency.

A 12-year-old boy and a woman were killed in the blast, said Ruslan Atsayev, a spokesman for the region's interior ministry. The wounded included a police officer in a passing patrol car, he said.

The bombing came a day after four Russian troops and a top regional officer were killed by a remote-controlled land mine in a region south of Grozny. They were trying to help a local administrator whose home was under attack by rebels when they were killed. (AP)

Ethiopia Warns of Malaria Epidemic

ADDIS ABABA, ETHIOPIA | Ethiopia fears a major malaria epidemic, with the number of infections in some regions already well above normal and the rainy season not yet ended, officials said Monday.

"We are alerting everybody and preparing ourselves as much as possible for this big epidemic," Health Minister Kebede Tadesse said.

The government and the United Nations say the epidemic could break out when the rainy season ends next month. Some 50 million of Ethiopia's 71 million people are at risk from the disease, which is treatable but deadly in poor countries like Ethiopia.

During the last major epidemic here in 2003, 6 million more people than usual were infected and 40,000 more than usual died. (AP)

'Odd' Cypriot Crash Probed

At least 6 people alive when jet plowed into hill

ATHENS, GREECE | At least six of the 121 people aboard a Cypriot plane were alive when the aircraft crashed while on autopilot, a coroner said Monday, as authorities raided the airline's offices and struggled to explain the actions of the crew.

The results of the first six autopsies shed some light on the final minutes of Helios Airlines Flight ZU522, which crashed Sunday into a hillside in suburban Athens, killing all 115 passengers and six crew members.

Greek aviation officials have said the plane apparently lost pressure suddenly, causing a rapid loss of oxygen on board. In that case, passengers and flight crew would have had only seconds to put on oxygen masks before losing consciousness amid subzero temperatures.

But two fighter jet pilots who scrambled to intercept the plane saw the co-pilot slumped over, oxygen masks in the plane dangling, and two unidentified people trying to take control of the plane.

"It's odd," said Terry McVenes, executive air safety chairman for the Air Line Pilots Association, International. "It's a very rare event to even have a pressurization problem and in general crews are very well trained to deal with it." (AP)

Indonesia, Aceh Rebels Sign New Peace Treaty

War-weary region greets news of accord with hope, skepticism

BANDA ACEH, INDONESIA | Thousands of people huddling around TV sets in a mosque courtyard clapped and cheered Monday while watching leaders halfway around the globe sign an accord to end three decades of war in tsunami-ravaged Aceh province.

But the crowd was subdued during most of the ceremony. Although many held hopes that lasting peace is at hand, others warned that fear and distrust run deep after the killings of 15,000 people during one of Southeast Asia's longest conflicts.

Rebel leaders immediately voiced concern about the thousands of government soldiers who will remain in the region while separatist fighters are forced to rapidly disarm under the eye of monitors from other Southeast Asian nations and the European Union.

Banda Aceh residents watch the signing of the peace deal in Finland Monday.

The peace deal, which was propelled by the desire on both sides to smooth the flow of aid to victims of the Dec. 26 tsunami, was signed in Finland by Indonesian Justice and Human Rights Minister Hamid Awaluddin and by Malik Mahmud, an exiled rebel leader.

Several other peace deals have collapsed, most recently in 2003, when the army kicked out foreign observers, declared martial law and arrested rebel negotiators. (AP)

BY THE NUMBERS: More than 100,000 believers flocked to a monastery in the hills of northwest Romania on Monday to kiss an icon believed to have miraculous healing powers. According to legend, the icon of the Weeping Virgin wept for 26 days in 1699. The first recorded miracle was in 1701 when it is said to have cured an army officer's wife who was going blind. (AP)

Gas Prices Hit New Highs

Commuters pinched
at pump as fuel costs
continue to increaseWASHINGTON | Right in line with the national trend, gas prices in and around the nation's capital hit at an all-time high Monday, AAA Mid-

Natural Gas Hike In Md. Set for Oct.

BALTIMORE | Washington Gas will charge Maryland customers a new surcharge during unexpected warm weather to help reduce higher winter bills and ensure the utility can cover its costs when demand is low due to warmer temperatures.

The policy, approved by the Maryland Public Service Commission, is known as a revenue normalization adjustment. Used by 37 utilities in 17 states nationwide, it is designed to reduce volatility in the natural gas market.

The new policy will be implemented Oct. 1.

Natural gas utilities set rates using estimates of weather based on long histories of weather data. However, that can lead utilities and customers vulnerable to weather fluctuations that don't fit the historical pattern.

Washington Gas will add the surcharge, which will not exceed $3.50 for most residential customers, during periods where the weather is warmer than expected, the company said Monday.

When the weather is colder than the utility predicts, which would lead to a spike in natural gas use, customer bills would be reduced.

The new policy comes as part of a settlement Washington Gas made over a dispute with groups that include the Maryland Office of People's Counsel, the Department of Defense and the Apartment and Office Building Association of Metropolitan Washington. (AP)

"Northwest takes another step forward in serving the community," said Stephanie Barrett, Alzheimer's Care Director. "Many people with Alzheimer's, or other related memory disorders, may experience difficulty with independence and freedom in their current living arrangements. The purpose of this special care unit is to provide an atmosphere where special needs can be met in a comfortable, quiet and homelike setting."

Specific admission criteria are needed for the special care unit in order to assess potential residents who can benefit from its services. Persons with similar needs and functioning levels can best be served in a group with similar levels of cognitive change.

"We want to provide an experience that makes our residents feel like they did in their prior home," said Barrett. "We can help preserve our residents' precious experiences of life while offering a long-term care solution that they and their families will feel good about."

Agilent to Change Focus, Cut Jobs

SAN JOSE, CALIF. | Dramatically narrowing its corporate focus, Agilent Technologies Inc. is shedding its chip unit and spinning off other assets as it concentrates on the test-and-measurement business at its historic core.

About 1,300 jobs will be cut in the reorganization, which will take the company back to roots that extend to the earliest days of its former parent, Hewlett-Packard Co. Agilent was spun off from HP in 2000. (AP)

Celebrity Mags Gain Teen Devotees

Younger readers are drawn to grown-up entertainment news

They are among her most cherished possessions — magazines about celebrities, saved carefully in a box that she keeps by her bed. But we're not talking Tiger Beat, J-14 or any of the other entertainment publications specifically aimed at teens and preteens.

Instead, 11-year-old Audriana Rossano is an avid reader of Us Weekly, a magazine with a core audience in its 20s and 30s that's among a number of entertainment weeklies with an increasingly young readership.

As traditional teen magazines have watched warily, and sometimes lost readership, the trend of young people seeking out older publications has grown in recent years.

A report issued by Simmons Research Group found that 23 percent of teen girls surveyed last year said they had read Us Weekly in the past six months, compared with 6 percent in 2000. Meanwhile, 16 percent in 2004 said they had read Star, which recently changed to a glossy magazine format, compared with 9 percent in 2000 when it was a supermarket tabloid.

Part of the weeklies' appeal, experts say, is a newsstand price that's generally less than $2. But dishing out more frequent doses of gossip — weekly instead of monthly — also plays a role.

"It's a celebrity-driven culture, but it's a culture where you get things quickly — and these weeklies provide that," says Tina Wells, the twentysomething CEO of Buzz Marketing Group. MARTHA IRVINE (AP)

CARDIAC IMPLANT DEVICE ALERT

Numerous defective cardiac implant devices including pacemakers, defibrillators, and stents have been reported. If you have a cardiac pacemaker, defibrillator or stents (see below), check with your doctor immediately to determine if you are at risk from these devices.

You may be entitled to compensation for injury, medical expenses, mental distress, replacement surgery or any other adverse effects from this or other defective stents, pumps or cardiac prostheses.

The Law Firm of Aaron M. Levine & Associates has been on the forefront of consumer medical products litigation for over forty years and has obtained compensation for thousands of clients injured by defective medical devices and drugs. Mr. Levine was appointed as consumer representative on an F.D.A. medical device committee and Chairman on an ATLA Pacemaker Committee.

Our vascular surgeon, cardiac specialists and in-house medical staff are available to review and evaluate your case. If your claim is meritorious, we can prosecute it for you on a contingent basis.

Did I Do That?

A new book explores the mechanics behind drunken blackouts

ALCOHOL | After a bout of heavy drinking, you awaken with no memory of the night's events.

Classic case of alcohol blackout. But did you simply forget?

Dr. Donal Sweeney says no. What really happens is that you formed no memory of those events: Immediate memory is not becoming short- or long-term memory.

About 20 years ago, Sweeney was lecturing on alcoholism at the University of California at Santa Barbara when he was asked to define a blackout.

He didn't have an answer, but he returned home bent on finding one. Much to his surprise, little information existed. Since then he's researched the subject for his book, "The Alcohol Blackout: Walking, Talking, Unconscious & Lethal" (Mnemosyne Press, $18, co-written with Robert Liston). His focus was on a handful of cases where a lack of memory led to devastating results.

He found that an alcohol blackout, which can happen to anyone who drinks too much too fast, occurs when information is not making it to the hippocampus area of the brain. Ask people in the throes of a blackout their name, telephone number or address, and they will respond with the right answer every time. Ask them to remember a four-digit number for 10 minutes and it will be lost in less than that time.

Alcohol black-outs may not cause memory loss — the memories may never form.

"You want to say 'I forgot' but that's not really true. You never formed a memory," Sweeney says. "When the person goes into a blackout, they don't know they're in a blackout. The people that are with them don't know."

Sweeney draws on extreme cases to make his point. A young man is extremely fatigued, gets drunk at a party and kills motorists in New Jersey. Another young man in Westchester County, N.Y., has a night of drinking gone awry, returns to his childhood home and kills the house's new residents. What all Sweeney's subjects have in common is a complete lack of memory concerning the circumstances that got them into trouble.

It's a mistake to associate blackouts with passing out. The blacked-out person can appear to carry on normal tasks. Throughout his book, Sweeney wrestles with defining someone in a blackout as unconscious. By some definitions, the person might be. By others, not.

"You don't have to be stumbling-down drunk," Sayers says. "They're communicating with you, and you wouldn't have a clue they were in a blackout."

Because the person experiencing blackout isn't thinking rationally, Sweeney says others should avoid confrontation and suggest sleep.

But how to tell if someone is in a blackout? Sweeney says to ask the person to remember a simple phrase. If 10 minutes later he can't remember the words, consider the person in a blackout.

What's your take on whey protein? I read that it helps control glucose/insulin and improves the immune system. Is this science or just more marketing hyperbole?

Whey protein is simply one of the proteins found in dairy products. If it's working for you, you like it and it fits with your nutrition regimen recommended by your doctor or diabetes nutrition educator, then go for it. But you can likely get the same benefits from skim milk or other nonfat milk products.

How much weight does one have to lose before his or her clothing size changes?

This varies so much from person to person. Some people find that they lose inches (OK, may a quarter of an inch here or there) before the scale goes down. Others find the scale declines, but their clothes still feel the same and then suddenly, voila, they feel loose. You can help tighten and tone — and sometimes just stand taller — with strength training.

I have found a great solution to travel! I bring my exercise DVDs on the road with me and I play them on my laptop. Now I can do Pilates or aerobics or abs programs right in my hotel room.

Great idea. And don't forget that resistance bands are also great for travel. They tuck into your suitcase and can be used for stretching and resistance training.

Mickelson's Major Accomplishment

Chip from rough sets up birdie to win PGA, elevates status further

GOLF | His spirits soared when Phil Mickelson realized a birdie on the par-5 18th hole at Baltusrol would allow him to win the PGA Championship and validate him as a major force in golf.

Then he reached out for an extra bit of luck.

Ten yards beyond his ball in the middle of the fairway was a stone plaque to commemorate the 1-iron Jack Nicklaus hit into the 18th green when he won the 1967 U.S. Open. Mickelson reached out with his 3-wood and tapped it twice.

"A little touch for some good karma," he said.

Mickelson delivered another dramatic finish to his second major title Monday, flopping a chip from the deep grass some 50 feet from the cup for a tap-in birdie that gave him a one-shot victory over Steve Elkington and Thomas Bjorn.

Ultimately, he might do Nicklaus a favor as a threat to Tiger Woods' pursuit of the Golden Bear's record

Mickelson's victory, which stretched over five days because of Sunday evening storms, gave him a second consecutive year with a major championship. Woods is the only other player to do that in the last 10 years.

Elkington and Bjorn made par on the 554-hole closing hole, and all they could do was watch on television as Mickelson played the chip shot first learned in his backyard as a kid.

"If there's anybody you'd back to get up and down from there, it's Phil Mickelson," Bjorn said. "He's not a one-major guy, he's a 10-major guy. And it's going to be easier and easier for him to win them now."

Pens Keep On Adding Weapons

Let go by Philadelphia, LeClair decides to stay in the Keystone State

HOCKEY | John LeClair probably wouldn't have given a thought a few weeks ago to joining a last-place team like the Pittsburgh Penguins. Sidney Crosby, Ziggy Palffy, Sergei Gonchar and Jocelyn Thibault changed his thinking.

LeClair, let go by the Philadelphia Flyers in the first wave of NHL salary dumping last month, signed a two-year contract Monday with Pittsburgh — the Penguins' fifth major player addition in slightly more than two weeks.

LeClair adds another scorer to a reshaped team that finished last in the 2003-04 standings but now has the look of a playoff team after acquiring offensive-minded defenseman Gonchar, the high-scoring Palffy, goaltender Thibault and drafting top prospect Crosby.

"It's exciting — they're an up and coming team," said LeClair, who made up his mind Monday morning to join a longtime rival.

Couples Gets Nod for Presidents Cup

GOLF | Fred Couples played his best golf this year in the two tournaments where Jack Nicklaus said farewell. Now he gets to play in the Presidents Cup, where Nicklaus will be captain for the last time.

Nicklaus selected Couples and Justin Leonard to fill out the U.S. team on Monday, while International captain Gary Player took Peter Lonard of Australia and Trevor Immelman of South Africa.

Many Happy Returns for Redskins

Arrington, Rogers and Noble join team for afternoon practice

REDSKINS | LaVar Arrington stretched his leg by pushing against the goal post padding, gingerly handled his first one-on-one blocking drill, appeared to limp slightly at times and took part in only a couple of plays during the 9-on-9 drills.

Even so, it was practice, and Arrington was taking part. The three-time Pro Bowl linebacker put on his helmet and shoulder pads Monday for the first time at this year's training camp, joining Carlos Rogers and Brandon Noble as the Washington Redskins welcomed back three key members of their defense.

"It's exciting to me," coach Joe Gibbs said, "because we're getting back some high quality players that have been missing for a while."

Arrington wore a black sleeve on his right knee, evidence of an injury that has hampered him for nearly a year and caused him to publicly criticize team officials. Rogers, the No. 9 overall pick in April's draft, worked at cornerback with the starting unit, backpedaling with ease and showing no sign of his ankle injury. Defensive lineman Noble was a little winded but otherwise looked fine in his return from a serious infection that developed in his knee after minor surgery.

All three were cleared to practice after passing their required physicals and were removed from the team's active-physically unable to perform list.

Rogers and Noble spoke at length about their recoveries, but Arrington wasn't sharing much.

He's been having another one of his media boycotts, and all he would say as he walked off the field through a scrum of reporters was an innocuous series of statements such as "I'm pretty excited" and "I take it day by day." JOSEPH WHITE (AP)

Forward Eyes Run At Playoffs

MYSTICS | Forward Delisha Milton-Jones has quietly emerged as a leader in Washington after being acquired for Chamique Holdsclaw in the off-season.

"What I like to think that I bring to this team is tenacity on the defensive end and just the leadership from all the years that I've been in this league," said Milton-Jones, whose 3-pointer at the buzzer rimmed out in the Mystics' 80-77 loss Sunday.

Milton-Jones has put up solid numbers this season, averaging nearly 12 points, five rebounds and two assists per game. She is also shooting nearly 80 percent from the charity stripe.

Milton-Jones has two WNBA rings.

A seven-year veteran, Milton-Jones already owns two WNBA championship rings from her time on the Los Angeles Sparks. That experience should go a long way as the Mystics look to make the playoffs.

"If we have any type of competitiveness in us at all," said Milton-Jones, "we're gonna want to get there bad." BRANDY L. SIMMS

FOOTBALL | Pro Bowl wide receiver Hines Ward ended his 15-day contract holdout and reported to the Pittsburgh Steelers on Monday.

Ward arrived at Heinz Field about two hours before the Steelers' exhibition against the Philadelphia Eagles and was quickly escorted into the stadium by a team official to watch the game.

Ward, poised to become the leading receiver in Steelers' history this season, became the team's first major holdout in 12 years on July 31 — keeping his promise not to report to training camp without a contract extension that would make him one of the NFL's top-paid wide receivers.

Ward has one year remaining on a contract worth $1.66 million this season.

The two sides were believed to be at least $3 million apart on a signing bonus when talks broke down just before camp opened.

SMELLS LIKE VICTORY: The Pixies lead singer Frank Black has been through a lot, but now takes time to ... well, you know.

Black & Bluesy

Frank Black recruits rock legends for one honey of a recording

MODERN MATURITY | Pixies lead singer Frank Black takes the prize in this year's derby for Oddest Duet.

"Strange Goodbye" is by turns sad, wistful and funny. At a time many couples would barely speak to each other, let alone join voices, Black and his ex-wife Jean Walsh sing about how it's "funny how we're laughing through all of these tears."

Black's life offered no shortage of emotional material while he was writing for his new solo album, "Honeycomb." Besides divorce, remarriage and his first-ever visits to a therapist, he was uniting his old band for the first time in more than a decade.

"There was just something about pain in that time of my life where I was kind of — I'd hate to say it — kind of enjoying the pain," he said, "not because it felt good, but because it felt good to be human and going through these extreme kinds of emotions."

If the subject matter weren't enough of a challenge, he chose to leave his musical comfort zone to fulfill a longtime dream. A hero in alternative rock for his quirky, tuneful songs like "Here Comes Your Man," Black traveled to Nashville, Tenn., to work with some legendary studio musicians. It's a well-worn path, trod most notably by Bob Dylan.

Former Wilson Pickett producer Jon Tiven pulled together a band with enough credits to fill an encyclopedia: Stax Records guitarist Steve Cropper; Reggie Young, guitarist on "Drift Away" and many other standards; keyboard player Spooner Oldham, who toured with Dylan and Neil Young; and Muscle Shoals Rhythms Section bass player David Hood.

Black acknowledged some initial nervousness about working with such a stellar crew. "But then your confidence and your ego had to take over," he said.

He's spent this summer on the second leg of the Pixies' reunion tour. For a band that had no real hits and had been defunct since 1992, the comeback has exceeded most expectations.

Inverting the famous "Dylan goes electric" show at the Newport folk festival, the Pixies will perform their first acoustic gig at this year's annual show.

"After we get done sort of taking advantage of the good will of the people with the live shows, we'll either go our separate ways or say, 'OK, let's make a record.'"

BRMC Rebels Against 'It' Buzz

The much-hyped band gets back to its songwriting roots

MUSIC | There is something endearing about a onetime Los Angeles buzz band finding and embracing its musical roots.

Black Rebel Motorcycle Club was once poised to be the dark shadow of garage rock, a Beat-poet counterpoint to the Strokes, playing high-volume rock 'n' roll in black leather jackets, a lo-fi Jesus and Mary Chain. Like most buzz bands, its reputation preceded it and its sales never matched the media frenzy.

The band was dropped by Virgin Records last year, and out of desperation or depression or whatever comes over people when they've lost all options, its members dug deep and came up with a record that is not in the least interested in target markets, it-band status or the puddle-deep scenester hipness that is often behind a "buzz."

"Howl" (RCA Records, due in stores Aug. 23) is a love song to American blues, gospel, country dirges and classic songwriting, rife with harmonica, soulful harmonies and dark lyrical themes anchored in notions of loss and redemption.

"Gospel Song" is the most sincere and affecting song any recent it-band has recorded, and though "Howl" doesn't quite match the generational cry of Allen Ginsberg's namesake poem, it's nice to know that angel-headed hipsters still burn for the ancient heavenly connection to the starry dynamo.

Rachel McAdams sets out to prove she's not a Plastic

NEW FACES | "Mean Girls" may have been the coming out party for Lindsay Lohan, but considering Rachel McAdams' red-hot career, some revisionist history may be in order.

McAdams, who portrayed the head of The Plastics in the 2004 hit, has emerged as 2005's most talked-about young actress. In the recent hit comedy "Wedding Crashers," she plays Owen Wilson's love interest.

The 28-year-old Canadian has been on the rise since the romantic film "The Notebook" last summer. In the upcoming Wes Craven thriller "Red Eye," McAdams plays a woman held hostage on an airplane by Cillian Murphy, a rising star himself after "28 Days Later."

ON THE RISE: McAdams has sped beyond her "Mean Girls" role to star in a thriller, an ensemble film and a Canadian TV show about a Shakespearean troupe.

Come fall, she'll appear in "The Family Stone" with an ensemble cast including Diane Lane and Luke Wilson.

Are you caught off-guard by how quick your rise has been?

It feels very new. There's no training for this life. I think [living in] Toronto helps keep me grounded.

Do you feel any pull to move to L.A.?

In the beginning there was more of a push to move out there. Now it just feels like Toronto is working for me and I'll stick with that.

You've said you like to "physicalize" your performances. But in "Red Eye" you're stuck in an airplane seat for much of the movie.

That was what I was so drawn to — being in a confined kind of space and still have it dramatic. I just wanted to play with the idea that if you think it, the camera will see it. The evolution that happens in her life, I wanted to be able to express that without a lot of dialogue.

Did you ever think you would head-butt somebody in a movie?

I had hoped. I didn't realize it would come so soon. We did stage combat at university and I was really shy and timid, but by the end of a year of beating this glove, you can really get into it. It's quite enjoyable.

Were you claustrophobic shooting in a fake airplane all day?

Yeah, it was incredibly claustrophobic. It wasn't as disconcerting as I thought it was going to be, but at the same time, it elevated the tension.

What kind of scripts are you getting now?

There seems to be an overall theme to female roles in Hollywood: a lot of obvious parts like the wife or the girlfriend. I'm trying to get away from that. So I'm just looking for any good character — I don't care if they're attractive people or not.

Stryper is back with a message for a new Generation Xian

COMEBACKS | Long before there was Switchfoot, Relient K or P.O.D., there was Stryper.

In the '80s, its blend of potent metal music and stage antics changed the way audiences perceived Christian rock. With today's release of "Reborn" on Big3 Records, the band hopes to stage a comeback — and stir things up again.

Lead vocalist Michael Sweet says the seeds for Stryper's first new studio album since 1991 were planted during the band's 2004 performance at Walt Disney World's Night of Joy event. "It felt great on the 2003 tour and that was fun, but it still didn't feel like it was the right time to unite officially," he said. "Then we did this show, and it felt like this could be it."

ONWARD, ROCK SOLDIERS: Controversial cover art worked for Stryper's 1986 hit album, so they're trying the formula again.

New bassist Tracy Ferrie joins

Sweet; his brother, drummer Robert Sweet; and lead guitarist Oz Fox.

One aspect of the record that is reminiscent of the band's '80s heyday is the album cover. "Reborn" features images of the four band members emerging from primordial goo. "It's a powerful statement," Michael said. "Through Christ, through God's love, we can be reborn."

Stryper has never believed in playing it safe. The cover for 1986's "To Hell With the Devil," featuring a pentagram-wearing Satan being cast into a pit, was boycotted by Christian retailers, yet became the group's best-selling album.

Nevertheless, Big3 and the label's distributor, EMI Christian Music Group Distribution, are not taking any chances. "Reborn" CDs will be sold with its cover obscured.

Can they make a comeback? Derek Stipe of Monday Morning admitted his band was skeptical when it got the call to open for Stryper's 2003 tour.

"They were always awesome, but they had been out of it for so long," he said. "Then to see how many fans they still draw and to see how excited the crowds were to see them was pretty amazing. I'd say their chances are pretty good."

THE MAN IS AN INSPIRATION: It's a touching story: Sell crack, become a big-time rapper, then tell all in an autobiography. Hip-hop star 50 Cent goes public with his first book, "From Pieces to Weight," today; it's about how he went from dealer to player.

BOOTSTRAPPING: New York's the Sharp Things do their own band promotion.

If You Want It Done Right ...

The Do-It-Yourself movement ends major-label letdowns

CONTROL | In 2000, the Churchills thought they had it made.

The New York-based pop band had landed a major-label record deal and a near-limitless budget. They recorded with only the finest guitars and ate gourmet lunches — all charged to the album expense account.

Three months later, they had spent $270,000 and the record was finished. But nothing seemed to be happening.

"It felt like we were nobody's priority," said Churchills bassist-vocalist Bart Schoudel. "We would stop by the label's marketing department, and they would say, 'Oh, you guys made a great record and I think the critics are going to love it.'"

Countless other bands have found themselves in a similar quandary: Signed to a major label, with promises of widespread distribution and big promotional budgets, yet going nowhere. They are casualties of an industry increasingly geared toward acts who can reliably sell millions of albums at a time.

As a result, a growing number of artists are going independent — financing records and tours, securing distribution deals and serving as their own publicists.

For Do-It-Yourself artists, securing a major-label deal is not the object of their aspirations. They have either become disillusioned with the majors or never saw a place for themselves within the establishment to begin with. Their efforts have been facilitated by home recording and the Internet.

The DIY business model has long been prevalent among punk-rockers, who began to record and distribute their own material in the early 1980s. But only recently have other genres begun to adopt DIY practices, inspired by the success of such artists as Aimee Mann and Ani DiFranco.

The New York-based orchestral pop band the Sharp Things self-released its first album, "Here Comes the Sharp Things," in 2002; it won favorable reviews and got the band noticed by the indie label Bar/None, which released the follow-up, "Foxes and Hounds," in May.

Still, like all DIY bands, it does not rely on its label.

"The beauty of it is that the ideal of 'success' can be defined by each individual artist," said vocalist Perry Serpa. "The deal is that you really no longer need the bottom-liners to define that for you anymore."

Unscripted TV shows thrive on carefully crafted catchphrases

SIGN-OFFS | They've struggled on remote islands, danced the Hustle on cue and eaten rotten squid guts for our entertainment. But reality-show contestants haven't been humiliated until they've been cut down by the catchphrase at the end of every episode.

From "You're fired" (NBC's "The Apprentice") to the less-memorable "You can't always get what you want" (VH1's "Kept"), one-liners used to eliminate people have gotten progressively cheesier.

So why do producers spend so much time writing them?

"Project Runway" host Heidi Klum dismisses losers with "Auf Wiedersehen."

"Cheesy one-liners have long been a staple of popular culture," said Mark Andrejevic, assistant professor in the Department of Communication Studies at the University of Iowa. They also give viewers a chance to participate.

It's not easy coming up with those phrases, though. Shari Levine, executive producer of Bravo's "Project Runway," said it took weeks to come up with, "Either you're in or you're out. And you're out."

Some people will watch a show just for the line. At least that's how some feel about the Martha Stewart version of "The Apprentice." To tease audiences, the producers are keeping her one-liner a secret until the show debuts this fall on NBC.

"I'm no fan of Martha Stewart," said Trevor Freeman, a writer for RealityFan Forum.com. "However, the show and her final line could be good if done right. I definitely want to hear what she's going to say." AMISHA PADNANI (NEWSDAY)

Lower Education

Tommy Lee makes a fool of himself in an excruciating new show

SCHOOL DAZE | Sometimes, truly horrible shows are the most thought-provoking. Exhibit A: "Tommy Lee Goes to College" (9 p.m., NBC), a reality retread so thoroughly unfunny it got me wondering: Just who's minding the shop at the once-proud Peacock network?

The show is truly shocking. Not for its rock or its raunch, but its tedious banality. Watch Tommy buy books. Watch Tommy register for class. Watch Tommy look for a roommate.

"Tommy Lee" follows the former Motley Crue frontman while he matriculates at the University of Nebraska as if he were just another 18-year-old freshman. Of course, he's not — he's a 42-year-old tattooed veteran of jail, rehab and the gossip pages. As a college freshman, Lee is simply pathetic — a wrinkled old rooster in a teenage henhouse.

Perhaps the programming geniuses who bought this show thought viewers would enjoy a fish-out-of-water-story. They should keep in mind what happens to real fish out of water: they flop around for a while, and then they die. Not long after that, they begin to stink. KEVIN MCDONOUGH

ON TV TONIGHT

THE NET OF POVERTY

The Oscar-winning documentary BORN INTO BROTHELS (7 p.m., Cinemax) began as an effort by photographer Zana Briski to spotlight the horrific conditions in Calcutta's red-light district. But along the way, Briski and her fellow filmmaker, Ross Kauffman, befriended and began to help the children of the prostitutes.

BRUCE IN OVER HIS HEAD

Bruce spends some time with cannibals on GOING TRIBAL (10 p.m., Discovery).

GET A HAIRCUT

"Apprentice" castoff Danny Kastner (the guitar-strumming guy with the Prince Valiant locks) appears on QUEER EYE FOR THE STRAIGHT GUY (10 p.m., Bravo).

In 6 months, we can train you to...

complete
the New Orleans
Mardi Gras Marathon
or Half Marathon

▼ GIVE US

- ◆ 30 minutes, twice a week on your own
- ◆ A longer group run each weekend
- ◆ Your fundraising efforts
- ◆ Your dedication and commitment

▼ YOU GET

- ◆ A six-month training program that will prepare you to complete a marathon or half marathon
- ◆ Great coaching, support, and camaraderie
- ◆ Roundtrip air travel and hotel accommodations in the French Quarter of New Orleans
- ◆ Free entry to the marathon
- ◆ The official marathon shirt
- ◆ The official marathon medal
- ◆ The joy and satisfaction that comes from knowing you are a hero to people with AIDS
- ◆ New friends and memories that will last a lifetime
- ◆ Bragging rights for accomplishing something others only dream about

A Training Program For Everyone

Our training programs are geared to both beginners and experienced runners. The full marathon program starts with three miles of running and walking, and gradually increases in distance each week. The half marathon program starts with just one mile. Many of our participants are first-time marathoners, and some have never run a step in their lives. But 98% of those who complete the program go on to complete the marathon.

Each weekend, you'll train with your "pace group" – other runners who share your same level of conditioning, whether fast or slow. It's a great way to get fit, have fun, and make a tremendous difference in the fight to end AIDS. It may be the best thing you do this year, and your life will never be the same.

A Worthy Cause

More than one million Americans, and 39 million others throughout the world, are now living with HIV. With more than 20 million deaths so far, AIDS is now the leading cause of death among all people ages 15–59 worldwide.

You'll train to complete a marathon or half marathon while raising money to allow Whitman-Walker Clinic to provide direct medical care and other vital AIDS services in our nation's capital.

Help Me Become A Dad

I am a successful doctor whose dream is to become a father. I'm fortunate to have a supportive family and great friends. But now I'm ready for life's most rewarding challenge: being a father. I can't wait to teach my child the importance of family and share my enthusiasm for interests like traveling, bicycling and caring for all my pets. But I need your help. I've found a wonderful woman to carry the baby, but I still need an egg donor. Could you be that special woman? My ideal egg donor is Caucasian, intelligent, fit, tall, blond, 21-31, with an excellent personal & family health history. N. European, British or Irish ancestry preferred.

ACCOUNTING

Credit, Collections and Customer Accounting Representatives

Start your future now!

The Washington Post is looking for bright, enthusiastic recent grads who are willing to learn. These positions in our Accounting Department can be the first step in a long career with a world-renowned organization. We often have openings in our Credit, Collections and Customer Accounting units. Once you are in the door, there is ample opportunity for advancement for motivated individuals.

These business units interact often and share similar responsibilities. They work closely with our advertisers and Advertising Sales/Service department to resolve billing and credit issues. This often involves analyzing advertising accounts to include reconciliations and monitoring for delinquency.

All of these positions require a commitment to excellent customer service and the ability to establish strong relationships with both internal and external clients. Successful people are detail oriented and have superior problem solving, communication, negotiation and organizational skills.

Experience in customer service with special emphasis on the financial services of accounting, credit, billing, collections and/or contracts would be a plus. Strong Word and Excel skills are a must.

We offer a competitive base salary and provide opportunities for additional compensation in the form of merit increases and incentive plans. We have an excellent benefits package that includes 3 weeks of vacation, excellent healthcare options, tuition reimbursement, metro check as well as a 401K and pension plan. Our headquarters is in downtown DC and is convenient to metro, museums and monuments.

Interested candidates should send a cover letter, resume and salary requirements to one of the following:

Top architects add a few twists to urban residential designs

Some buildings sweep to the sky in eye-catching twists and turns, while the mirrored exteriors of others reflect surrounding landscapes.

Visions by such celebrated architects as Michael Graves and Daniel Libeskind will likely change the skylines of many American cities, as developers increasingly turn to designers known more for their work on museums and other public buildings than condominiums and luxury housing.

Today's structural stars are creating condos with curves, glass enclosed elevated walkways, glass expanses and other flourishes that in previous decades were reserved for office towers. Some in the architectural community see the burst of creativity as a renaissance in urban residential building.

"I think there is a new awareness in this 21st century that design is as important to where and how we live as it is for museums, concert halls and civic buildings," said Libeskind, who designed the landmark Jewish Museum in Berlin and won the competition to create the master plan for the new World Trade Center in New York City.

Libeskind has designed a crescent-shaped, 21-story condominium complex — The Ascent — that will give the appearance of sweeping upward in a flourishing curve of mirrored glass against the backdrop of the Cincinnati skyline. Construction, which is expected to top $40 million, is to begin this year along the Ohio River in Covington, Ky.

CURVES AHEAD: Daniel Libeskind's new condo tower could transform Covington, Ky.

In recent decades, urban condo design has largely tended to be more sedate and less imaginative than commercial office buildings and cultural institutions. Developers of residential buildings have often gone with designs that were more economical to build, especially as urban residents continued to migrate to the suburbs. While some cities such as San Francisco and New York have been innovative with urban loft spaces, much of the urban landscape has continued to be dominated by more traditional, often boxlike, brick apartment and condo dwellings.

The demand for high-rise condominiums has increased as land becomes scarce and property values rise, and developers are looking for ways to make their buildings stand out in the urban residential market.

Kevin Matthews, editor-in-chief of ArchitectureWeek magazine, and others acknowledge that more experimental styles and the higher costs of using big-name architects could be risky if buildings go too far outside the mainstream or don't mesh with their surroundings.

But Matthews doesn't think that will be a problem, especially in the luxury market. LISA CORNWELL (AP)

"Having a noteworthy architect's name on a project also makes it unique and individual, so that if the market goes bad or softens up, we will be a notch above competitors," said Craig Nassi, president of the Denver-based BCN Development LLC, which is building a 38-story condo tower in Sacramento, Calif.

Travel

Space fans with deep pockets could take a lunar trip by 2008

The company that pioneered commercial space travel by sending "tourists" up to the International Space Station is planning a new mission: rocketing people around the far side of the moon. The price of a round-trip ticket: $100 million.

The first mission by Space Adventures could happen in 2008 or 2009 and is planned as a stepping stone to an eventual lunar landing by private citizens.

"For the first time in history, a private company is organizing a mission to the moon," Space Adventures CEO Eric Anderson said at a Manhattan news conference last Wednesday, a day after space shuttle Discovery safely returned to Earth.

Anderson said he already has prospective "private explorers" who are interested in the trip and could afford the ticket.

The initial travelers would be the first to orbit the moon in more than 33 years, according to the Arlington, Va., company. Only 27 people have ever made such a journey.

"We are going to show the world

"We are going to show the world that private citizens can complete the training and the qualification necessary to execute such flights."

SHOOT FOR THE MOON: Space Adventures CEO Eric Anderson says he'll be able to bring you to the dark side of the moon, if you have $100 million lying around.

that private citizens can complete the training and the qualification necessary to execute such flights," Anderson said.

The trip, aboard a modified

Russian spacecraft, will offer the chance to see the Earth rise from lunar orbit and a view of the far side of the moon.

The far side of the moon has a special appeal, Anderson told The Associated Press in an interview, because it takes most of the hits from asteroids, meteorites and other objects from deep space.

Space Adventures plans to offer multiple trip itineraries aboard Russia's Soyuz TMA spacecraft. One possibility is a 5 1/2-day lunar flight and up to 21 days at the International Space Station; another is a nine-day mission with three days of free flight in low-Earth orbit and the rest flying around the moon. In both cases, the spacecraft would dock with a booster, carried up by a separate launch vehicle, to propel it to the moon.

The company has a partnership with the rocket maker and the Federal Space Agency of the Russian Federation, through which they have sent American businessman Dennis Tito and South African Mark Shuttleworth on a Soyuz for stays on the space station.

Brazil Takes the Stage

 The country's designers challenge preconceptions

BRAZIL IS NO STRANGER TO THE fashion world, with rapidly expanding fashion weeks in both Sao Paulo and Rio de Janeiro now finding a regular place in buyers' and journalists' schedules.

To the greater population, familiar only with Victoria's Secret Angel Gisele Bundchen, it might seem that Brazil is entering the fashion world models-first — certainly a lovely best foot to put forward.

But Brazil is more than sun, surf and swimsuits, and there is a sense of unrest among designers who want to push those boundaries outward.

"People in New York tend to expect you to be sexy a fun if you are Brazilian, partial thanks to Gisele," says Juliano Corbetta, the Brazilian-based designer of Get Butch, a line of wisely sexy beachwear. For Corbetta, Brazilian sunsh is only one part of the style story. "I am not always going to be inspired by Carnival, and maybe one day I'll even do an all black collection," Corbetta declares, challenging the notion that only traditional icons of his country's culture need apply. "People abroad are mostly interested in Brazilian designers if you can feel some sort of Brazilianism in the designs, be it through bold colors, hand embroideries or a sense of sensuality (or even a little skin) in the clothes."

With humor, subversion or outright contradiction, many Brazilian designers are making style choices at reflect an awareness of their country's current norms hat are either played to-or-against, yet are rarely altogether er ignored.

For example, Patachou, designed by Tereza Santos, recently presented a casual wear collection of all off-whites and neutrals, structured light jackets and layers of sheers. The Ellus winter '05 collection used baseball hats and uber-American images like Mickey Mouse. M. Officer manifests the more casual (but still high glam) side of Carlos Miele, a designer known for high-profile red carpet gowns. And the Osklen winter '05 collection looks to be more influenced by snowboard gear and grunge than warm tropical breezes.

Yes, the Brazilians have taken the beach but they are out to conquer still more territory.

"We still have a long way to go in order to become trendsetters," Corbetta says, "But slowly the country is heading in that direction."

Beauty

It's Condiment-riffic!

Embrace your inner hot dog with the BIGELOW MUSTARD BATH ($18 at bigelowchemists.com). Mustard has long been valued as a pore-opening, toxin-reducing wonder-condiment; the piquant combo of mustard seed and essential oils helps you sweat out all the impurities that come with summertime city living. A hot bath with a few scoops of this yellow powder is an intense experience that will leave you feeling relaxed and cleansed — just remember to drink plenty of water afterward. An added bonus: The bath may also ease congestion, which is exciting for the allergic among us. (THE DAILY)

A Breath of Fresh Chemicals

MODELCO'S COOL FEET AIRBRUSH CATWALK HEELS

($20 at Sephora) sounds like a Lemony Snicket plot waiting to happen, what with its Happy Fun Ball slate of warnings ("extremely flammable," "do not breathe mist," "no smoking") and ingredients like butane and propane. Is this a cosmetic or a camp stove? It's something else entirely: "The first-ever airbrush foot cooling spray that instantly revives and refreshes sore, tired feet." The can emits blasts of cold, pepperminty air, leaving nasty post-workout feet dry and tingly, though no less tired. Not recommended for firewalkers. HOLLY J. MORRIS (EXPRESS)

Howard Kurtz

Crawford Clamor

Post media critic HOWARD KURTZ was online Monday to discuss the press, including recent coverage of protester Cindy Sheehan | washingtonpost.com/liveonline

Why does the Post devote so much coverage to Cindy Sheehan's crusade against President Bush? The Post certainly didn't provide the same front page coverage to the parents of soldiers killed during the Clinton administration.

The Post is certainly not alone here — Cindy Sheehan has been all over television and in other publications like The New York Times. What she has accomplished, whether you agree with her or not, is a classic bit of media manipulation. The complaints of one mother would hardly merit plenty of coverage, but one who is dogged enough to show up at Crawford, Texas, where lots of reporters are camped out in the heat with little news to cover, enabled Sheehan to fill a void. From there the coverage seemed to build on itself — small stories begot larger stories as more protesters showed up to support her and the media decided they had a symbol of those opposed to the war. Of course, the more Sheehan allies herself with groups like MoveOn, the more she risks being dismissed as a partisan rather than a mother with a heartfelt grievance.

Why does Sheehan have to be either/or? Why can't she be a mother with a heartfelt grievance and a partisan? Why wouldn't she align herself with people who agree with her? Why wouldn't she want her feelings to have a political effect and make changes, rather than just a little temporary sympathy?

She can, of course, be a mother with a heartfelt grievance and a partisan. But the more she seems like a spokeswoman for antiwar groups who is pushing her own ideological agenda, the less sympathy she is going to generate in the American public. There are, obviously, plenty of mothers who have lost sons in Iraq who support Bush and the war.

It seems that news today is all about emotion, not reason; that confrontation trumps every other news value; and that the media, despite the vast resources at their disposal, only cover stories that are dropped in their lap. This is not a healthy combination. How did we get to this point, and how do we move beyond it?

I don't agree that the media only cover stories that are dropped in their lap, but for reporters stuck on Crawford duty in August, this story was indeed dropped in their lap. I thought it would be a two-day story at first, but Sheehan, with help from a liberal PR firm and supporters flocking to Texas, has succeeded in turning her protest into a running story. Imagine if she had come to Washington and held up her sign in Lafayette Park — I doubt she would have gotten three paragraphs in the local papers.

Horoscope

By Stella Wilder

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) You've been getting the praise you so desire, but you haven't been listening to it. It's time for you to believe your own publicity.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) What seems the best option early in the day may not live up to its potential later on. You have the freedom to change course at any time.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22) You can enjoy unexpected rewards simply by making yourself available to others on a more widespread basis. Think before saying no.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21) This is a good day to face a certain reality and to realize that despite what others say you can indeed remain in control of your own destiny.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21) A current project may suffer a setback, but you can prevent any lasting delays through a novel and highly creative approach.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) Relationships may prove stronger by day's end than you had expected, particularly after certain developments threaten your own trust.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18) You're likely to play a significant role in the affairs of a Cancer or Leo native today. Don't come on too strong, however.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20) You'll get to the heart of an important issue today and be able to make one or two key decisions that will affect you and others for some time.

ARIES (March 21-April 19) Look beyond your own immediate concerns today and you'll discover that you have more in common with those around you than you had supposed.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) Now is not the time to push it; indeed, you may want to lie low and let certain things happen without any involvement whatsoever.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) Versatility is the key to success. You can prove wise enough to know when to take advantage of conflicting sides of your own character.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) Now is not the time to say no to any opportunity you are offered at work. You may have to revise your schedule, but you can tackle it all.
